The Country code is the country's ISO code.

The telephone mask allows you to format the numbers as you wish.

For example, in France, the usual format is 01-88-33-59-46.

If you enter 99-99-99-99-99 in the mask, all French numbers will be entered in this form.

You can use other masks, such as 99 999 999, or 99-999-99. The telephone mask can contain the characters 9, +, -, (or).

You can also enter a zip code mask, e.g. 99999 for France (postal codes are 5 digits long). In the zip code mask, you can use 9 to signify any number, L to signify any letter. Any other character will be used as is (e.g., if you make a mask FR LL-999, you'll get zip codes like FR AB-123).

The regional code is only used in certain countries (Australia, Brazil, Canada, USA). If this box is checked, you'll be able to enter a region code for addresses in the country concerned.

The time zone is here as a reminder; it is used by some Gestan extensions.
